ANDES COIL PROCESSORS ADDS SLITTING LINE IN DALLAS FACILITY

Dallas, Texas (November 11, 2016) – Andes Coil Processors LLC announced toll processing services have been added to its Dallas, Texas, facility opened in 2015. A new, 60” Pro-Eco custom slitting line was installed in September. The Dallas facility, located at 1401 W. Commerce St., previously served as a storage and logistics hub.

The new slitting line features shape-correction capabilities to enhance all products and will process materials between .015” - .250” gauge and master coils measuring up to 72 inches (outside diameter, or O.D.) with a 50,000-pound maximum coil weight.

Pro-Eco Slitting Line

- .015” - .250” x 60” wide
- 50,000-pound maximum coil weight
- 72” maximum O.D.
- Core Flex leveling system
- Dual-injection head for quick setup change
- 20”/24” O.D. on recoil

“The market continues to show a strong interest in localized processing,” General Manager Josh DuBois said. “Logistical costs and the benefit of local relationships have been the main drivers. This trend fulfills both the need for lower landed cost and the desire to conduct business with someone who lives in your community and cares about the health of your business.”

Andes has increased its slitting capability at both its Lewisville, Texas, and Gary, Ind., facilities in 2014 and 2015, respectively. As a steel coil toll processor, Andes does not own steel but rather provides processing and logistical services to its customers.
